WORMS! WORMS!!

If parents knew the value and efficacy of Dr. Leidy's Patent Vegetable Worm Tea, they never would be without it in their families, as children are subject at all times to Worms.

Dr. Leidy's Worm Tea is composed of vegetables altogether, and may be given to children of all ages. Directions accompany each paper or package.

Children suffer much, of times, from so many things being given them for worms, without any effect. Much medicine, given to children, has a tendency to destroy their general health, and they are more or less delicate ever after.

To avoid the necessity of giving medicine unnecessarily when you are certain your children have worms give them at first Dr. Leidy's Worm Tea. It is all that is necessary.

Reference might be made to several hundred parents in Philadelphia city and county, of the efficacy of Dr. Leidy's Worm Tea. Try it and you will be convinced.

Price 12-1-2 cents a small, and 25 cents a large package. Prepared only, and for sale, wholesale and retail, at Dr. Leidy's Health Emporium, No. 191 North Second street, below Vine, (sign of the Golden Eagle and Serpents,) Philadelphia.

Also, sold at Wm. Eastburn's store, Stroudsburg, Jan. 4, 1843.

On the external use of Tobacco in Croup.

BY JOHN D. GODMAN, M. D.

During my residence in New York, where my children were very frequently attacked with severe and dangerous fits of croup, to which they had always been particularly liable, I was informed by my friend, Dr. F. Vanderburg, of a very simple and efficacious method of arresting at once all the symptoms of this distressing and frequently fatal disease. Whenever children are threatened with an attack of eynanche trachealis, he directs a plaster of dry Scotch snuff, varying in size according to the age of the patient, to be applied directly across the top of the thorax, and retained there until all the symptoms disappear. He stated that he found the remedy to be always effectual when applied in the first or second stages of the malady.

This mode of treatment was from prejudice or scepticism neglected by me, and in one instance, in which, with very considerable difficulty, one of my children was rescued by the ordinary treatment. But on being again urged to make trial of the snuff plaster, I determined to make the experiment whenever opportunity presented. This was not long wanting, and when called to a child laboring under all the symptoms of the early stage of croup, such a plaster (made by greasing a piece of linen, and covering it well with Scotch snuff,) was directly applied to the chest. The event was most happy; the symptoms of tracheal irritation and harsh crouping-cough ceased shortly after, the child fell into a profound sleep with gentle perspiration, and by next morning was free from all distressing symptoms. The plaster was reapplied for a night or two following, and then discontinued, as the disease had entirely disappeared. Since that time my family have been saved from a great deal of anxiety and alarm, to which previously they were subject, as we were obliged to keep Cox's hore syrup, tartar emetic, and all the other articles usually resorted to, constantly ready to meet the attacks of croup, which were very sudden and frequent in cold and wet seasons. Since then, we have found nothing necessary but the snuff plaster. If a child is heard to breathe hoarsely, or cough, with any thing of the dreaded ringing sound of croup, it is only necessary to apply the snuff plaster, and we feel under no farther anxiety. Instead of being obliged to watch with the child all the rest of the night, when once the snuff is applied, we go to rest again, with a feeling of entire security, which we have never had the least cause to regret.

The intelligent physician above named, is in the practice of deriving great advantage from the external use of tobacco in various cases, in which it is by no means generally employed, if its use be even thought of. To allay the irritating cough arising from different diseased states of the lungs; in diseases accompanied with chronic spasm, and in the reduction of hernia; by direct application of tobacco to the hernial tumour, &c., Dr. Vanderburg has used tobacco externally with very decided success.

In cases of croup the Scotch snuff (which I believe is prepared from tobacco stems,) is to be preferred. My friend, Dr. Pendleton, of New York, informs me, he has tried other snuff without attaining his end, while with the Scotch the effect was certain. I publish this note with the hope that other physicians will give the treatment a fair trial, and report their experience. It has the advantage over the tobacco smoke, mentioned in the interesting notice of Professor Chapman, recently published, that it may be kept always ready, and be applied in the dark, without loss of time. It has never caused vomiting, vertigo, or any other distressing symptom; in my experience, and this accords with the experience of both the physicians last mentioned in this note.

Division of Labor.

The senior editor of the Abington, Va., Statesman, whose partner is a preacher, thus notices the division of their labor between them.—The junior editor of this paper, who is a preacher in the Methodist Protestant church, on a tour through Lee county, last week, had the satisfaction of adding to the church, the names of 79 persons, at least half of whom professed to have passed from death unto life. This is as it should be—let the junior fight the devil abroad, and we (the senior) will fight his political imps at home, with all the energy that God has given us.

Sacrifice of Property.

The Worcester, Mass., Aegis says the sale of machinery in the Dudley Woollen Mills, a couple of weeks since, illustrated most emphatically the condition of things in manufacturing districts. The machinery, which cost $40,000—and most of it said to be in a good state—sold for about $4,000.

CURE FOR THE GOIT.—Persons afflicted with this distressing complaint may be cured in a week by simply changing places with any day laborer about town. Hire the laborer to eat the luxuries, and let the patient go to work, which plan of proceeding will cure the goit without expense of a doctor, or annoyance of physic.

From the National Forum

Name your time Miss Lucy.

Dear Lucy, I adore you,
More than words can tell;
I've told you so before—you •
You know it full well.
You are the beau ideal
Of woman's loveliness;
Oh give me rapture real,
And name the hour to bless!
Dear Lucy, to possess you,
All other ties I'll sever
But then you know—Lord bless you,
A man can't wait forever,
Oh, name the hour to nuptialize
(I leave it all to you, see!)
Reward my love, my tears, my sighs,
And name your time Miss Lucy.

WHIZZ.

To Whizz.

Dear Whizz! I do believe you,
Whatever you say is truth;
In faith, I would not grieve you,
You sympathetic youth!
Your lines must, I am certain,
Hook some fair maiden's heart;
Behind misfortune's curtain,
Love ever baits his dart.
Dear Whizz, should you possess me,
All other ties I'd sever;
Then blushing, I confess me
Your own, now and ever!
Then name your time to nuptialize,
The men must always woo, see!
Your constant love, your tears, your sighs,
Have conquered your MISS LUCY.

I say boy, stop that cow.
I ha'n't got no stopper sir.
Well head her then.
She's already headed sir.
Turn her then.
She's right side out already, sir.
Confound your impertinence, speak to her.
Good morning, Mrs. Cow.

CUSTOM IN 1742.

Wife silk and satin;
Boy Greek and Latin;
And you'll all be Gazetted.

To Catch Rats.

An Ohio paper states that as many as thirty-six rats have been taken in one night by the following plan:—Take a smooth kettle, fill it to within six inches of the top with water, cover the surface with chaff or bran, then place it in the evening where the rats harbor.

The hot house system of education is doing wonders for the youth of our land. The boy kicks off his diaper and frock, and jumps into calf skin boots and a long tail coat. He exchanges the nipple for a cigar, and the sugar teat for a quid of tobacco. The girl is either baby or lady. She makes one jump from her nurses arms, into her husband's, and of course is "finished."

By a law of Delaware, no free Negro or Mulatto is at liberty to keep a gun or fowling piece, except he have the certificate of a Justice of the peace, issued upon the recommendation of five or more respectable citizens of the neighborhood, that he is a man of fair character, &c.

Daniel Lambert's Clothes.

The Leicester Journal states, that at a recent sale of the late Mr. Owstan, a suit of clothes which had been worn by the celebrated Daniel Lambert, was disposed of. The clothes consisted of a coat, waistcoat, and nankeen small clothes, and the dimensions were as follows: the coat twenty-nine inches across the back, twenty-three inches across the elbow; in the waistcoat there are eighteen button holes two inches asunder, circumference of the arm-hole forty-six inches, round the waist ninety-six inches, length forty-six inches; width of small clothes ninety-six inches, round the knee-band thirty-three inches, top of the thigh, fifty-five inches.

ALL IN THE FAMILY.—Governor Bouck, of New York, has made quite a snug family arrangement. His Private Secretary is his own son, his Military Secretary is his own son, the Adjutant General is his son-in-law, and his Messenger is his nephew. Pretty fair for one family.—Dai. Chron.

Improve the present, prepare for the future, and never forget the Printer!

The Captain's Last.

A gentleman speaking of Temperance the other day, remarked that Sir Robert Peel had stated that notwithstanding all the good Father Matthew had done in Ireland, the increase in the consumption of ardent spirits in the Emerald Isle has been at least twenty per cent. in the last year.

'How do you account for that?' said the captain.
'I'll tell you in short metre,' said his friend, 'and in a way you will understand me to a T.'
'Go ahead and cut it short,' said the captain.

'Exactly—that's the ticket for soup—you shall have it cut as fine as Ogle's chewing tobacco, and as short as Scott's pie crust,' said his friend at the same time drawing up his under lip and giving his pliz a peculiar expression. 'I have a friend captain,' said the last speaker, 'who lives in Atacapas, where he accumulated a snug competence. One day last summer he was seized with a Home Sick fever, and he concluded to leave the green fields of the South for the dreary waste of New Jersey, where he sprouted into existence, and where his parents reside this moment. In the course of time he arrived at the cottage where he drew his first breath, and warm and cordial were the congratulations he received from his kindred. After breakfast in the morning he arrived, his father and brothers retired to the fields to labor, when his kind mother thus addressed him:

'Well Jack—the fact is we have had great changes here since you left us. The old man and boys have joined the Temperance Society and will not drink a drop; but as they are in the field now; I have a bottle and can give you a drink!'

'Jack took a 'pull' at the old lady's secret retainer, and started for the barn, where he met his father, who said:

'Jack, since you left us, there has been hell to play—the old woman and the boys have taken the pledge, and they made me put down my name also; but if you like a 'horn,' I always keep Black Betty under the horse crib—step over there and you'll find her in prime order!'

'This was too much for the Captain he fairly roared—but held up at the request of his friend until the conclusion.

After Jack had tried the quality of the old man's rye tea, he took a stroll to the cornfield, where he met the boys, who were in great glee.

'We are glad to see you Jack,' said one of his brothers; 'we're just going to ease off for a few moments, and you must join us. Before we take a smasher, however, I must tell you what fools the old people have made themselves about the Temperance Society. They scratched down their names, and made us do the same, but they hav'n't fooled us bad, as you'll soon see. In another moment a large green bottle was circulating among the boys, and Jack had a sup at that also!

'This,' said the captain's friend, is the illustration of Sir Robert Peel's remark. Every one has a bottle now—all drink in secret—while formerly the 'crathur' was publicly consumed.'

The captain finished his laughing—acknowledged the corn—and paid for the juleps!

[Crescent City]

We recollect reading some years since a real Yankee Trick, which may be well applied to the present day. A Yankee tin peddler wishing to coin money more rapidly than by disposing of his wares, became suddenly afflicted with a very disagreeable disease vulgarly called the itch. In every house on his way he left the infection, and the country for a great extent was filled with it to the great horror of the natives, who wished him and his cart to the 'old scratch.' A short time after another peddler of the same description "followed in the footsteps of his illustrious predecessor," and among his Yankee notions was to be found an infallible remedy for the itch—warranted not to fail. Money poured into his coffers, and by the time he had taken the tour of his partner in business who scattered the infection, he had a sufficient sum to set them both up in business.

Just so with Millerism. The apparently honest disciples are roving through the country, distributing gratuitously their papers and tracts—holding forth to the gaping multitudes, and frightening old women and children, and on their heels are book peddlers selling the refutation of the doctrines of Millerism!! This beats the Morris Town Ghost affair all hollow, and the itch peddler to boot.—Jerseyman.

A bankrupt in Vermont lately gave among his effects as the product of his labor, nine small children. He thought his creditors entitled to all his acquisitions since he became involved.

A short time since, Mr. Johnson, while a bill to exempt certain property from execution was pending in the Indiana Legislature, offered an amendment thereto, providing that the families who kept no cow should be allowed to retain in lieu thereof a barrel of whiskey!
